ZINGOLOGY MANUFACTURING LLC LAUNCHES NEW LINE OF FINE ART SCULPTED EXTERIOR ACCESSORIES

Fine art meets the aftermarket parts business

November 3, 2009 – Las Vegas, NV – Zingology Manufacturing LLC (Zingology) introduces Fine Art to the aftermarket accessories business. By introducing a line of hand sculpted and foundry casted differential covers made of stainless steel and aluminum, Zingology enhances the choices available in a place on a vehicle not extensively customized.

Zingology also increases the American Lexicon by enhancing a word. “Zing” is now the mix of fine art and the aftermarket accessories business. Zingology is the study of and application of “zing”. Zinging is placing fine art on your vehicle.

Zingology’s products are designed and sculpted by nationally recognized fine art sculptor Raymond Gibby. His fine art sculptures are in art collections from New York to Hawaii. He has done commission work for Eldora Raceway in Rossburg, Ohio which is owned by Tony Stewart, for the NASCAR Bass Pro Shops Atlanta 500, for the Brandon Burlsworth National Football Award and many more.

Zingology, located in Bentonville Arkansas, creates fine art accessories for vehicles. It believes its customers should receive cool, unique and exciting products to create a WOW factor for their vehicle. Offering outrageous full 3D designs, a wide range of customizing options including includes various finishes, configurations, material choices Zingology is unmatched. Additionally, Zingology offers an option for a completely custom design created to match the customer’s desires.
